Is The Moon Inhabited.

Science has proven that the moon has an atmosphere, which makes life in some form possible on that satellite; but not for human beings, who have a hard enough time on this earth of ours, especially those who do not know that Electric Bitters cures Headache, Biliousness, Malaria, Chills and Fever, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Torpid Liver, Kidney complaint, General Debility and Female weakness. Unequaled as a general Tonic and Appetizer for weak persons and especially for the aged. It induces sound sleep. Guaranteed by E. B. Moore, druggist. Price 50c.

A Rocky Old World.

One cold, rainy day in March, 1906, a young woman knocked at the door of John M. Barker, in this city. Seeing she was in trouble he invited her in to make it known to his wife. Her story was soon told. She was not hungry. She had lived two days on two ten cent lunches. She was a young bride of only eight weeks, who was tramping the streets and by ways in the cold, pelting rain and mud. She was selling packets at ten cents each to get money for her young husband. No, she was not cold. Her young husband was so fine looking, had a classical education, fine, white, broad forehead and his dark hair fell away from his temples in wavy profusion. Her face had a frightened and haunted look upon it, and she drew close to the fire and shivered awhile. She slept when she could find a bed at twenty cents.

Dinner was ready but she would not go to the table, she was not hungry. She was not searching for charity. She had money to pay her way. She expected the door to be closed in her face, it was so nice to open the door and tell her to come in. She was just a common nuisance and knew that everybody would be glad to see her go. She had sixty cents, would we please buy a satchel—only ten cents. Being compelled, she went to the table and ate her dinner. She was then given a warm and comfortable room to spend the night in. She was selling satchels to furnish money for her young husband. He needed cash money and to pay his other necessary bills for hotels and railroad fare, and must have it, and she must furnish it, and she did. Mr. Barker cross-examined her a little—enough to close the story.

She had a kind old father and mother far away in southern Kansas. In some way it was made known to them that they had a little wandering girl far away that night. Two days later her brother arrived much to her surprise, and took her back where she can hear the friendly rain drops beating on her own fathers roof.

It is told that a woman on a windy day had hard work keeping her hat on her head, and used both hands to hold it on, letting her skirts fly. "Madam," said a man of honor, "your skirts are above your knees." "I don't care if they are," said the woman keeping both hands on her hat. "I've had those legs for forty years and the wind has never blown them away yet, but I just bought this hat for $18 and I don't intend to lose it."

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT.

It's made for painting buildings for painting them in the best way it's possible to paint them. It's made to withstand the hard exposure they are subject to.

It will withstand the destructive elements better than any other kind of paint, no matter what the other kind is made of or how it's made.

The cost is lowest for the results obtained.

The Deacon Counsels the Girls.

Things are awful dull, aren't they, my young lady friend? Says the Village Deacon. You just can't find anything to do in the old town. Terrible to have to live in a place where you can find absolutely nothing to do from one morning's end to another. But I can tell you how you can keep busy part of the time. Tomorrow morning you can hop out of bed early and get breakfast started. Then go in and tell mother she need not get up until she feels like it. If she wants it, you can fix up some toast and coffee and take it to her room. After breakfast wash the dishes, sweep and dust the rooms, and straighten up things generally. Then get busy with dinner, you may have to chase downtown for a thing or two, but it will do you good. Mother got strong running her own errands. After dinner is over and you have things cleared away you can find time to do the sewing you say you need. You might slip in an hour or two by reading some good book. Then you can get supper, and after it is over and the dishes are washed you will be at liberty to spruce up, sit in the parlor and wait for his coming. Of course, this routine would get tiresome in the course of a quarter of a century, but you will find that you haven't more than got to be a fair hand at it until some Nice Man will pick you up and set you into a home of your own—and then you will have plenty to do to keep you busy.

All Deer is Wild Deer.

Kansas City—Deer and other species of game bred in captivity for the market come under the provisions of the state game law. This decision was made by Judge Wofford, of the criminal court, in the case of Anton Weber, a butcher, who was arrested on Christmas day for violating the game law by offering and expressing for sale seven deer. The defense made by Mr. Weber were that the deer that he offered were born in captivity upon the farm of George M. Casey, in Henry county. Judge Wofford decided that the law applied to any animal or bird that was wild by nature. This decision if upheld by the supreme court, will be a blow to several persons in this state who, since the passage of the game law, have gone quite extensively into the business of breeding deer and other game.

A sad request has just been made of the Department of Justice. The New York authorities have asked it to assist at the burial of the coffin trust.

Failure on the part of the Republicans to improve their opportunity is the only thing that can give the Missouri Democrats a victory next fall.

The politician, says an exchange, is between two fires. If he uses money to gain his ends, the people criticize him. If he does not, they forget him.

A New York mind reader discovered a woman's husband just when he was in an embarrassing position. Many similar discoveries would be apt to make the science unpopular.

Boys, business men of your town know you better than your parents, says Anna Carlson. Their eyes are on you when you are least aware. You may slip away from your mother, you may dupe and deceive your best friends, you may elude the watchful eye of your teacher, you may trifle with the confidence of your Sunday school superintendent, but you can't fool the business men in your town when they have a position to be filled.

Preaching at the Christian Church Lords day April 8, 1906. Morning 11 a. m., subject "Law of Love," evening 7:30, subject "Civic Righteousness." Everybody cordially invited.

Will Butler Ruin Folk.

For the first time Ed Butler has openly admitted that he and Governor Folk have patched up their differences and are bosom friends again.

Several times of late Butler has hinted at the reunion. In guarded way he has intimated through the columns of his newspaper, the Saint Louis World, that he had buried the hatchet he had sharpened up for Folk. But until this week did he say it right out loud. "Almost to a man the rank and file of the Missouri Democracy is with Gov. Folk," shrieks Butler, and by his statement he shows that he loves the Governor well enough to lie for him.

It is not necessary to stop to prove the Butler statement false. The Saint Louis Republic, the official mouthpiece of Missouri Democracy, has time and time again admitted that the Folkites and Anti-Folkites are bitter enemies and are of about equal strength in the State. From all sides come reports of the split, and even many of the Folkites who are not as biased as Butler, acknowledge that the division exists.

It is as the proof conclusive that Folk has gone back to the machine that Butler's confession is worth of notice. For the going back means the controlling of Folk by Butler; means that the alleged fearless champion of law and order will, before long, become one of the Butler puppets and will dance when the machine pulls the string.

Why Butler should pay court to Folk is one of the wonders at present. Folk's popularity is rapidly on the wane, and it is freely being said that were the Governor to stand for a menial office at present he would be defeated badly. But Butler always has a reason for his actions, and some are unkind enough to believe that he has wooed Folk to ruin what little chance remains to the man who climbed into the limelight by means of the lid.

"Do" the biggest little word in the dictionary. What it lacks in length it makes up in strength. "Do" you know that we handle a full line of the "Best" farming implements on the market and sell them from 10 to 25 per cent less than all other dealers. A little filler goes a long ways if properly rubbed in. A little evidence goes deep into your common sense if it comes from the experience of your neighbor who has been successful. Grasp the opportunity now, start this season right and buy the "Best" line at price cheaper than those on goods, "so called just as good."

TO-DAY IS YOUR CHANCE TO BUY

Others are taking advantage of our bargains every day. We are not here to get rich but to please our customers. Three car loads in stock and two more on the road. Every piece of this is guaranteed to do perfect work. Before buying price our line and we will save you money. We have two car loads of Pittsburg Perfect Fence and sell it for less than you can buy it at the factory today. If you expect to buy anything call or write us what you expect to buy and we will save you money.
